"Are People Losing Faith In Their Government?"

By Cindy Guill

On Wednesday, May 15, Miss Cindy Guill accompanied by her U.S. History teacher, Miss Carla Howell, went to WETU Television Station in Richmond, Virginia, to read aloud her prize-winning eassay "Are People Losing Faith in Their Government?" Cindy is sixteen years old and the daughter of Mrs. Hazel Guill. She is a eleventh grade student at Appomattox High School. She was selected along with seven other young Virginia students to read her essay on Bruce Miller's "Behind the Lines" current events program. Cindy's reading was telecast on Friday, May 17. Following is Miss Guill's award-winning essay:

During one hundred and fifty years, we have built up a form of self-government and a social system which is peculiarly our own. It is the American system. It is founded upon the conception of self-government in which decentralized local responsibility is the very base. Further than this, it is founded upon the conception that only through ordered liberty, freedom, and equal opportunity will individual iniative be spurred on in the march of progress. But we still have people who will not support the government, and are losing interest and confidence in it. Our primary task then is to encourage people to work. This is no unsolvable problem if we face it wisely and courageously. People are the true builders of a growing nation. What people believe and the actions they put forth show their feelings about certain matters. I believe people today are living in fear of having their government collapse. Each man has in his heart the dream of a real democracy, the triumph of popular government, and in the long run an economic system under which each man shall be guaranteed the opportunity to make the best of himself and be able to support a government he can be proud of.

Theodore Roosevelt believed in a "square deal." He went by the rules and believed in changing these rules if they could, in any way, work toward a more substantial government. Does our present government help us to make a better tomorrow from the laws of today?

Like our forefathers we are still striving for the principles of our government; Equal and exact justice to all men, whatever their color, race, or creed may be. Other principles are peace, commerce, and the support of our government in all its rights. Does our government today give us all these principles?

We now know why people feared that the government could become destructive when the "Declaration of Independence" was written in seventeen hundred and seventy six. It states: "That whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it and to institute a new government, laying its foundations on principles . . ." Are we losing faith in the principles on which our forefathers were laying the foundations of our government? We, the people, must not lose confidence; we must believe in our leaders and remain as one united nation under God.

My dream, along with other American's dream, is that as the years go on and the world knows more of America, it will look to America for those moral inspirations which lie at the door of all freedom. The world will never fear America, unless it feels that America is engaged in some interprize which is inconsistent with the rights of humanity. America will come into the full light of the day when all shall know that she puts human rights above all other rights, and that her flag is the flag not only of America, but of humanity.

Deadline Near For Designating Tobacco Warehouses

Growers of flue-cured tobacco have only a few days left in which to make warehouse designations, reports James R. Ford, Jr., Chairman Appomattox County ASC Committee. "Friday, June 14, is the final date," he said, "and there will be no extensions of this deadline."

In order to be eligible for price-support, this year for the first time flue-cured tobacco growers must designate the warehouses where they will sell their tobacco and how much tobacco they will sell. Designations are to be made at the local office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Appomattox, Va.

The program would be operated to avoid the overloading of warehouses in fire prevention of food for and reforestation. Has exhibited nearly 400 local, regional and "There are 35 flue-cured tobacco growers in Appomattox county," Mr. Ford said, "of which 20 so far have made their warehouse designations. I urge the others to come in as possible. If they have not designated on or before they will forfeit their for price support."

treatment vans, similiar to bookmobiles.

Dr. John Fedison, area dentist, described the need for emphasizing preventive dental health care and dental health education. Dr. Fedison explained why putting money into preventive dental services was the most effective use of the community's money. The "toothsavers" program in the schools and fluoridation of the water were also discussed as good possibilities for Appomattox.

Transportation for non-emergency health services and especially dental care was described as major problems. Mini-buses and volunteer drivers through civic organizations were recommended to assist with these problems. Mobile dental vans at the school buildings were also suggested.

Emergency medical services were discussed and the group spoke very highly of the services presently being provided by the Appomattox Rescue Squad. The group thought that any advance training and communications equipment, which would improve services and foster areawide cooperation, would be welcomed by the community. Chief Matthews explained that the squad had discussed the possibility of high-trauma corought that any advance training and communications equipment, which would improve services and foster areawide cooperation, would be welcomed by the community. Chief Matthews explained that the squad had discussed the possibility of high-trauma coroughts to dead storage for emergency dispatchers and a county-wide dispatch system was also discussed.

Mrs. Shirley Moore, Director of the Information and Referrel Center of Central Virginia led a discussion on Health Education and Preventive Health. One of the topics that was discussed was the establishment of an Appomattox County Information and Referrel satellite. Rev. Moray Peoples was instrumental in forming the first county service of this type. This county service will work directly with local health and social service agencies as well as the regional Information and Referral Center.

A short presentation of the Tel-Med program was made to the group. The Tel-Med service is a program being studied by the Central Virginia Health Planning Council in which area residents can telephone for health education material stories; venereal disease, glaucoma, etc. The program was well received by the workshop group. Dr. Matthews suggested that this program be set up on a state-wide basis if it would be effective. Mr. Cornell Goldman, Appomattox County Extension Agent, thought the program would be helpful to area residents.

Mrs. Lena McLean and Mrs. Gladys Moon, registered nurses with the schools, also discussed the health education needs of Appomattox youth. One of the major problems cited was the difficulty getting approval for certain types of health education programs. This was pointed out as a problem on films and pamphlets on venereal disease and other such health education problems. Some of the health education materials prepared by Mrs. Cilla Brown of the Health Planning Council pointed out that one (1) student in five (5) contracted venereal disease by the time he/she graduated from high school. The role of the Parent-Teachers Association and other community groups was discussed in relation to these problems.

Mr. Paul Morrison, Executive Director of the Health Planning Council, suggested that many of these problems could be addressed by a local Advisory Committee which could build on the existing cooperation and coordination that existed among Appomattox organizations and agencies. An Appomattox Health Advisory Committee could assist the Health Planning Council in identifying area needs and setting program priorities to meet those needs. These activities would be coordinated through the Central Virginia Health Planning Council.

Dr. Jack Matthews nominated Mrs. Walton as the chairwoman of the Appomattox County Advisory Committee. The group pledged their continued support of the Health Advisory Committee and its relationship with the Central Virginia Health Planning Council in solving area health problems.

With the achievement of desirable and adequate facilities was an incentive to everyone to begin a concerted effort during the 1972-73 school session to implement a plan which would ensure a systematic procedure to meet the standards and to achieve the objectives required by the State Department of Education as mandated by the State Legislature.

At the meeting last week, the board also adopted the Policy Handbook, a copy of which will be submitted to the State Board of Education for approval.

A resolution was passed authorizing Frank Chuchek, Administrative Assistant, to enter a contract with Moses Company for a Driver-Training car for the 74-75 school session.

Lloyd Walton, Division Superintendent, reported to board members on the financial status of the schools in the county for 1973-74 and discussed proposed receipts and disbursements for the 1974-75 school session.

ACS - Organization of "People Helping People"

"The American Cancer Society is an organization of people helping people," according to the Society's 1973 National Annual Report which is dedicated to the 2,300,000 volunteers who are "giving their time, talent, and energy for all of us to live in a world free of cancer."

Noting that ACS volunteers deserve to go down in history because they are helping the cancer patient today; teaching the public how to be on guard against cancer; and supporting research that will find the answers, the Report points out a few of the years highlights in the Societys fight against cancer:

- Great strides were made toward the goal of the Uterine Cancer Task Force Program-a Pap test for every adult woman by 1976.
- A record $25 million was spent by the acs for research and clinical investigation
- Reach to Recovery volunteers visited over 31,000 women after breast surgery. Nearly 20,000 other patients recovering from bowel or larynx cancer were also aided by trained volunteers.
